

Certain US universities have adopted a more flexible policy with respect to the SAT I test. The list below is a subset of the universities, selected by Southshore's counseling team and includes colleges and universities that deemphasize the use of standardized tests by making admissions decisions about substantial numbers of applicants without using the SAT.

A complete list of higher education institutions with flexible SAT policies can be found at <http://fairtest.org/university/optional> (further information about each school's specific SAT policies is also available).

Some schools exempt students who meet grade-point average requirements or class rank criteria while others require SAT scores but use them only for placement purposes or to conduct research studies. Please check directly with the admissions office of the universities and colleges listed below to learn more about specific admissions requirements, particularly for international or non-traditional students.
